Bismarck Archipelago

May 13th, 2020 - history

The first inhabitants of the archipelago arrived around 33,000 years ago after sailing from what is now Papua New Guinea. Later arrivals included the Lapita people. The first European to visit these islands was Dutch explorer Willem Schouten in 1616. The islands remained unsettled by Western Europeans until they became part of the German protectorate of German New Guinea in 1884.
